I'm not sure why I'm doing this. I guess I just need to talk to you sometimes, but you're not here. I don't even have anything to say. Just wish I could hear your voice, your laugh. I cry a lot. Not in front of anyone. I know you don't want me to, but I can't help it. I miss you so much. I find it more difficult to get up and start the day, to laugh and joke around, to talk to mommy. Thanksgiving is next week. I don't want to go. I don't know what to do anymore. We're trying to find some cool stuff to put at your grave for Christmas time. I need a drunken santa statue! I want you to know that the kids talk about you almost everyday. I had a dream the other night. I don't know where we were but suddenly you got out of the car. I didn't believe it! I had to run over and hug you and talk to you but I couldn't hear your voice. I'm sorry I'm rambling on. I love you daddy.

I don't even know what to say buddy, never wanted to see this day but I guess it was gonna come sooner or later... thanks for all the talks, the crazy stories of you and dad and the life lessons, but most of all thanks for being there for dad... the lessons and knowledge you passed to him were surely passed to me, I can only hope I can pass that much to my son. The world is a sadder place without you to make the room fall over in laughter. May you rest now in comfort and peace...P.S. check in on us once in a while, you know us clowns can use all the help we can get down here....
