Jackie Williams Bryley (Daughter) lit a candle in honor of John.

Dad if you could have known. You trusted that your wishes would be carried out and as you wanted. It didn't happen the way you wanted. You sat in a closet from Dec. 2012 til May 2014 then your ashes were given to me. I purchased your burial place and I had the US Marine Corp. come in to play taps and bid your final farewell. I placed your name on stone. I purchased your veterans emblem for stone. I was not reimbursed for this. Dolores died in April 2016, and both Phyl and I were left nothing. We were disinherited. You always told us she loved us like her own, but after you died; February to be exact we were no longer thought of as daughters. I know you would have done the right thing but you trusted someone and you were betrayed. I love you and miss you. But you are with my mom where you belong. She loved you unconditionally. Not for your money 💰.
