Bob, It's so hard to believe you are gone. I'll always remember drinking a cup of coffee with you in the living room. You were a light to future generations. It is my sincere hope and desire that I can be half the man and half the father and husband that you were for your short time on this earth. We all know that you were in this world, but not of this world. Greater is he who is you than he that is in the world. Jesus has called you home from this World. I will see you again.
