Today I was working with a mutual friend of Francine's who told me the sad news about Nisi. How many hours I have missed hearing about your amazing and wonderful family. Each day I still look at a special gift - a sketch by Kathleen Sullivan and have my own moment of silence for this brilliant family. The silence of ones voice doesn't mean they are forgotten. They are alive and well inside of those who are priviledged enough to have known them - and when you listen closely, they are still near. With love, thoughts and prayer, Lynda
