My condolences to you and your entire family for your loss. Loosing a love one in death is a horrible thing to endure. It seems that the grief of this can go on forever. The Bible speaks of a momentous time when death will be swallowed up forever. 1 Corinthians 15:54. It also gives us real hope that our loved ones will be resurrected. John 5:28, 29. One day very soon the pain of death will be non-existent. I know that no amount of time will be able to heal this loss, but I do hope that through family and encouragement you will be able to cope with the grief.
