The loss of a mother has got to be the hardest thing a child has to endure. The sadness in your heart will never be washed away by the tears but it will become easier to deal with day by day. We have to believe that she is no longer suffering and is in a better place. We will all be reunited again one day. I believe that our loved ones live forever in our hearts and minds so therefore she will be with you forever. I wish you peace and comfort as you come to deal with this and want you to know that BJ and I are here if you need us for anything. Love you all. Frank & BJ
