Often I admired your resiliency and tenacity throughout your life. You were one of those "unsung heroes" which many were not aware of the battles you had to endure and finally won the war. Long days of yesterday's labor, Uncle Jr., you can rest easy and be at peace. You did good and so very proud of you. You always made something from nothing and taught others what being humble really meant. A gentle man satisfied with the simple way of life. Thank you for the conversations, the joyful times shared with the family and friends, and a wonderful smile you were always willing to give wherever you went. So many helped you, so many loved you. Always and forever. Uncle Jr., you're one of God's angels now. Finally with your momma, family, and friends in heaven. We all are at peace now.
